6 ALLIED ARMIES HAMMER AT NAZI DEFENSES

Tank-Led Soldiers Seek To Trap Japs On Plains Of Leyte

(By Associated Press)
Tank-led American infantry today surged over strong Japanese positions on the southern front on Leyte island in the Central Philippines in a determined bid to trap enemy forces retreating up the wide Leyte valley.

This advance, reported by A. P. War Correspondent Al Dopking, stemmed westward from the Dulag beachhead established last week. It was spearheaded by Yanks of the Seventh infantry division who were commanded by Lt. Col. Herbert Edmanson, of Georgia. Ahead of them was flat terrain, ideal for tank warfare.

This action appeared to center on a highway running west from the coast toward the town of San Pablo, seven miles inland.

Tanks rolled into the Leyte valley also from the small town of Palo, on the northern sector of the front, where outnumbered Nipponese retreated westward.

Tacloban, above Palo, meanwhile became the site of the first conventional government in the archipelago since it was overrun by the Japanese more than two and a half years ago.

At Dulag and the temporary Philippines capital of Tacloban, engineers were converting two captured airfields into advance bases for U. S. land-based bombers and fighters.

Bomb Enemy Bases
Carrier planes and aircraft based outside the Philippines were steadily hammering enemy air bases and transport centers throughout the islands. In the days of pre-invasion and invasion-supporting blows they have destroyed more than 1,500 enemy planes—equivalent to a month's production for Nipponese factories.

Pres. Sergio Osmeña and his Filipino cabinet reestablished the free Philippines government at Tacloban where Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced he was bringing back to the islands the "sacred right of self-rule."

It was, he said, "a prelude to the liberation of the entire territory of the Philippines." MacArthur declared "null and void" all laws and proclamations of the Japanese-controlled government of Pres. Jose P. Laurel.

After several small but fierce Japanese counter-attacks, and stubborn resistance in the center of the line where warships moved in close to the shore to knock out enemy strong points, MacArthur said his "ground forces are steadily extending their positions on all fronts, while back of the lines 'a great base' for all arms for future operations" was being developed.

The enemy has been virtually cut off from sea reinforcements and their remaining air force was limited to dusk to dawn sorties against the great American fleet of more than 600 ships in Leyte Gulf.

From this most northern of the Philippines the Allies can dominate Japan's communications to her essential war supplies—like rubber and oil—in the East Indies. They can, by the same token, cut off from the homeland hundreds of thousands of Japanese troops in Indonesia and Burma. They can neutralize the powerful air-naval base of Formosa, which is one of the chief shields of Nippon. They can reach the southeast coast of China to establish bases to aid the hard-hit Chinese, and from these bases they can send bombers to rip at the vitals of Japan.

ALL THAT sounds mighty good—and it is good. However, let's not permit it to mislead. As things stand, it's a bloody route to Tokyo. The conquest of the Philippines in itself bids fair to be one of the greatest engagements of the entire world war.

D'GAULLE WINS VOTE OF ALLIES

French Government Given Recognition by U. S. And Great Britain

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—The United States and Great Britain today recognized the DeGaulle administration as the "provisional government of the French republic."

The American action was announced by Acting Secretary of State Stettinius who also disclosed that most of France, including Paris, had been designated by Allied military authorities as an "interior zone" in which the French authorities have complete responsibility.

This interior zone covers everything except the combat areas and points essential to combat supply.

The action of recognition completely changes the basis of relations between France and the Allied powers—the United States, Britain and Russia. De Gaulle, instead of ranking only as the leader of a "De Facto" authority, now ranks as chief of government and head of state, approximately the positions held by President Roosevelt, Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill.

Among the practical results will be the right of the French authorities to lay claim to French funds which have been tied up in this country since German troops overran the French nation.

It also appeared that De Gaulle's position of insistence on French representation in the higher Allied councils such as the European advisory commission would be greatly strengthened.

The French funds which have been tied up in this country are estimated in excess of one billion dollars.

Notwithstanding spirited campaigning to awaken an apathetic electorate, not more than 40,000 of Columbus county's 50,000 qualified voters will go to the polls Nov. 7, election board officials predicted today.

If the prediction is fulfilled, it will mean a 10 per cent decrease in the poll compared with four years ago, when 44,267 electors were recorded in the Roosevelt-Wilkie presidential race, although 697 of them failed to vote for either candidate.

A survey revealed no extraordinary interest in the state, district and county contests, and submission of 15 questions or issues, including two state judicial and 13 city, village, school district and township revenue measures.

Stressing as factor in a decreased vote from the all-time high four years ago, political observers forecast less than 5,000 of the county's 10,000 men and women in the armed forces will apply for ballots.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—The National Labor Relations board today ordered the E. W. Bliss Company (rolling mill division) of Salem, O., to conduct a collective bargaining election within 30 days among its maintenance and production employees.

The workers will vote on whether they wish to be represented by the United Steel Workers of America (CIO), District 26.

Bliss company workers will meet at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the V. F. W. hall with representatives of the United Steelworkers of America to discuss contract negotiations.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—A 20-year-old Marine "bazooka" man in combat for the first time on strongly-fortified Peleliu fired his weapon eight times and knocked out four Japanese tanks in a wild burst of action that took only 10 minutes.

The exploit is related here by admiring comrades of Pfc. Robert Bungard, son of Mrs. W. D. Bungard, of Diamond, Mahoning county, Ohio. They say they owe their lives to his cool head and amazing marksmanship.

Bungard was moving forward with an infantry outfit on the afternoon of D-day when a fleet of Jap tanks came rolling over a hill. He got into position in a shell hole which protected him up to the chest and waited for the Japs to come within range.

The first Jap tank was within 200 yards when he opened fire with his rocket launcher. His first shot damaged one of the leading pair of tanks; his second blew its turret off.

FARM SPEECH TO BE GIVEN BY GOV. DEWEY

Plans Minneapolis Talk Following F. D. R. Campaign In New York

BY J. W. DAVIS
Associated Press Staff Writer
How Americans can prosper in farm communities developed new political arguments today, along with the question of how America might work in a community of nations.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey traveled from New York state to the mid-west with his summary of a postwar agricultural program, which he is expected to broadcast from Minneapolis tomorrow.

The choice of Minneapolis would place the Republican presidential nominee in the same city where over the weekend Vice President Wallace predicted that under a Republican administration the net farm income would "be cut in half within a few years."

Minnesota also figured in the political scene through the announcement by Joseph H. Ball, one of its Republican senators, that he had decided President Roosevelt is the man to elect on foreign policy grounds.

Associates of Ball, who is an advocate to a strong peace agency, reported in advance they expected him to declare for Mr. Roosevelt's Saturday night speech in New York. The President then called for a world peace organization in which the American representative would have advance authority from Congress to help keep peace by force if necessary.

Plans Other Talks
"We either work with the other great nations, or we might some day have to fight them," Mr. Roosevelt told the Foreign Policy association.

That speech climaxed a day of old-time campaigning in New York, part of a plan for an aggressive wind-up of his fourth term campaign in whose later stages the president is following much the same lines as his success-bearing strategy of 1940.

Mr. Roosevelt may speak in Chicago Saturday night; another address is expected in Boston, probably Nov. 4. Cleveland, the last stop on his 1940 schedule, may also see him within the final two weeks.

Republican Chairman Brownell said in a statement at New York that the President's foreign policy speech tried "to read the Republican party out of the union" but that since Pearl Harbor the people "have increasingly turned to the Republican party for vigorous and competent leadership."

From Rochester, N. Y., Publisher Frank Gannett of the Gannett newspapers telegraphed President Roosevelt that he was guilty of "gross misrepresentation" in calling the Gannett papers "isolationist."

Mrs. Arlene Hawkins of N. Howard ave. has received word from the War department that her son, Pfc. Charles E. Kille, 23, has been missing in action in France since Sept. 30.

The infantryman entered the service in July, 1942, and went overseas in June, serving in France with the 80th Infantry division. He received his training at Camp Forrest, Tenn., and Camp Phillips, Kan. Pfc. Kille was employed at the Woolworth store before entering the Army.

The first Jap tank was within 200 yards when he opened fire with his rocket launcher. His first shot damaged one of the leading pair of tanks; his second blew its turret off.

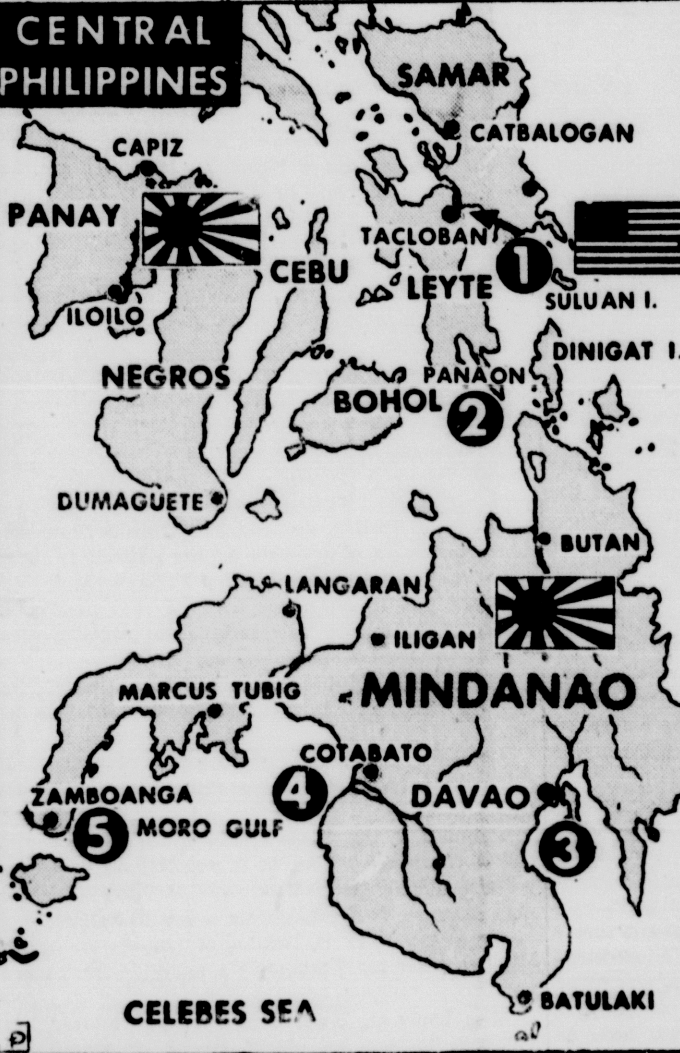

The other tank of the first pair was only 50 yards away, its guns spitting fire. Bungard, aiming carefully, halted it with one shot.

As the rest of the tank fleet, estimated to have numbered 20 in all, sought to spread out over the ridge, the young bazooka man took aim again. Three hits were enough to disable another tank and he turned his attention to a fourth. This one he got with two shots. That was enough for the rest of the Jap tanks and they fled back over the ridge.

"I'd find it hard to believe if I hadn't seen it myself," related Corp. John A. Heisler, of Wausau, Wis. "I was just a few feet away from Bungard when he went into action. It was almost like a movie. He was stopping everything that he fired at."

By dropping a grenade down its hatch, Heisler himself destroyed a Jap tank which had bogged down in a swamp.

Philippine Battle Continues

AMERICAN FORCES under General Douglas MacArthur are continuing to drive inland on Leyte in the Central Philippines following the seizure of a 75 to 100 mile strip of coastline. The capture of Tacloban (1) is reported to be imminent. Units that landed at Panaon (2) aided in diverting Jap forces that might have been rushed north to repulse the heavier U. S. attack. Meanwhile, on Mindanao, Far Eastern Air Force bombers blasted oil dumps near Davao (3), strafed shipping in the Cotabato area (4) and sank Jap freighters at Zamboanga (5).

Chest Clinic Planned Three Days For Benefit Of Public

Public interest in the first mass chest x-ray program to be held in Salem has resulted in the setting up of a three-day schedule, instead of the originally planned two-day survey. Miss Lillian Schroeder, executive secretary of the Columbus Public Health League, said today.

Large groups of workers, office employees, teachers, professional men and women, employers have arranged to have chest x-rays, free of charge, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Anyone interested may receive a chest x-ray during the survey at the headquarters to be established in the Ohio-Edison building. Workers of the Columbia Lamp Co., Salem Engineering, Gonda Engineering and C. B. Hunt & Son firms will participate.

The survey is being conducted to discover tuberculosis in the early, curable stages when even the slightest cough may not be known to have the disease. Doctors point out that the only positive way to determine the presence of the illness is by x-ray and the only way to be sure, is to have a chest picture made. Remarkable results have been achieved in cities where similar mass surveys have been made, showing numbers of persons suffering with tuberculosis in the first stages who were apparently healthy. The early diagnosis enabled them to begin treatments and set them on the road to full recovery.

"Be Sure You Are Safe" is the slogan for the survey which gives complete and positive identification of each picture made and prompt, confidential reports by mail.

The following schedule has been arranged to accommodate the large numbers of employed and professional men and women who have asked to have the x-rays:

Thursday
10 a. m. to 11 a. m., Columbia Lamp Works, 100 workers; 5 p. m. to 9 p. m., public, at Ohio-Edison building.

Friday
2 p. m. to 5 p. m., Salem Engineering Co. workers at plant.

Saturday
1 p. m. to 5 p. m., General public at Ohio-Edison building.

Registration Heavy In Big Voting Cities

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—Thirteen cities which cast more than one-fifth of the total popular vote in the 1940 presidential election have completed a record-breaking registration totaling slightly more than 12,000,000, including service men and women who have applied for ballots.

An Associated Press survey of registration in the 13 cities, each with more than 500,000 population, showed that the total exceeded the 11,215,461 registered in those cities in the banner year of 1940.

The cities included New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Baltimore, Boston, Pittsburgh, San Francisco, Milwaukee and Buffalo.

Their combined vote was approximately 10,000,000 in 1940, or more than one-fifth of the total popular vote of 49,815,312.

PRESSURE ON LINE EXTENDS MANY MILES

Rain of Blows May Be Fore-runner of Grand Co-ordinated Attack

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Oct. 23—Six Allied armies pounded the tight-drawn Nazi defense band from Holland to Switzerland's border today with an unceasing pressure aimed at opening the eventual cracks that will permit a smash to Berlin.

The rain of blows was not yet a grand co-ordinated offensive, but it was intended to hammer the enemy line ever thinner and to mask the timing and place of the main attack.

The assault was on against the shrinking south Schelde pocket west of Antwerp, the Breda box north of Antwerp, the hard-held doorway from Aachen, the upper entrance of the Saar valley, and the sharp-cloven Vosges passes.

The British Second army, striking in three columns on a 12-mile front from the western side of its Holland salient, drove to within three to five miles of the prize communications hub of 'S-Hertogen-Bosch.

11-Mile Advance
The Canadian army swept on from Eschen on the Dutch Belgian border, 16 miles north of Antwerp, after an 11-mile advance in two days, and hammered methodically toward Roosendaal, four miles ahead.

The strikes here, which were assuming the proportions of a general offensive to clear the sea lanes to Allied-held Antwerp as a supply port, had pressed the Germans from two sides into the Breda box—a 40 by 20 mile rectangle below the Maas (Meuse).

The Canadians were about to outflank the German coastal anchor at Bergen Op Zoom, four miles ahead.

West of Antwerp the Canadian capture of Breskens and Fort Frederik-Hendrik, a mile farther west, an old fortress modernized by the Germans. On the south side of the pocket, the Canadians took Schoondijk, pinching the Germans into a canal-sliced area of only five by eight miles.

The German hold on the Schelde fast was slipping with the capture of the controlling enemy guns at Breskens and Fort Frederik-Hendrik. Only one battery—there were three two days ago—remained in action in the Vlissingen (Flushing) area on the north side of the estuary after Allied heavy-bomber attacks.

Drive Past Duren
Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' U. S. First army pushed a mile east toward Duren after its capture of its first major German city, Aachen, and was clearing the enemy from the area around the village of Wurzel, three miles northeast of Aachen.

It was here—other Americans last were reported six miles southeast of Duren which is 20 miles from Cologne on the Rhine—that the

Gov. Dewey At Pittsburgh

Gov. Dewey's speech at Pittsburgh makes it clear why New Dealers are showing signs of desperation over their chances of adding the 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th years to their span of power. The governor has planned his race; he is going to finish strong.

His forthright bid for labor support Friday night in pivotal Pennsylvania strikes the Roosevelt administration at the heart of its political strategy in 1944—the assumption that it can "manage" votes in industrial regions through labor union connections.

This is more than a campaign matter. For many labor leaders it is a problem in security. Some of the leaders have hitched their personal wagons so irrevocably to the New Deal's falling star that they now are politicians first, labor leaders second. Their fate has been tied to politics.

Gov. Dewey told wage earners in his Pittsburgh speech what to expect if he wins the presidency. He would take government out of wire-pulling and favor-swapping at labor's expense and give it the rights it has won as a matter of merit, instead of privilege. In effect, he would apply to this particular problem his whole philosophy of government.

Gov. Dewey is a progressive administrator with a passion for order. Where labor is concerned, this means he would consolidate its gains since 1932 and secure them for the future by equitable application. He would oppose favors, deals, dictation and special privilege—charges which labor leaders and their followers, themselves, have made against the Roosevelt administration. He denies that labor, any more than any other economic group, should be at the mercy of political manipulation. He denies that labor should have to purchase any rights at the expense of freedom.

Labor's gains, like all social gains, he declares, are the property of those who have won them, not those who happened to be in power when they were bestowed. The Democratic party holds no monopoly on devotion to labor's interests. Some of its greatest gains were made under Republican administrations. Certainly, no party holds a monopoly on labor's votes, a fact which may be plainer to politicians after Nov. 7 than it is now.

Labor's future will be served best by national unity, full employment and encouragement of free enterprise. Gov. Dewey offers a future, not a past.

The political issue with labor, as with every other group holding a special identity in the 1944 election, is whether the United States would be better governed, more unified, more progressive and stronger during 1945, 1946, 1947 and 1948 with Gov. Dewey's kind of government, or whether we are to have a continuation of everything the New Deal has come to mean, with its confusions and divisions piling up at compound interest for four more years.

MacArthur's Satisfaction

As details of the great invasion of the Philippines are added, there is no room for doubt that Gen. MacArthur's satisfaction is to be complete. He has come back to the islands infinitely stronger than he was when Japan occupied them after Pearl Harbor. By the strength of this initial blow, the United States has demonstrated that it is completely prepared to finish its job not only in the Philippines, but in the Pacific. At last, MacArthur seems to have everything he needs.

His satisfaction is personal only in the sense that it was his destiny to represent the United States at a critical interval in history. Yet, reading the stirring words of his summons to the Filipinos to strike for freedom, one cannot escape the feeling that destiny could not have chosen a better man for the task the general has performed. Whatever may be his faults, he has comprehended the spirit of a relationship which has few counterparts in history.

If the United States acquires itself with honor in restoration of the Philippines' prospect of freedom, which is as important in many ways as expulsion of the Japanese invaders, it will be because the Filipinos have learned to trust us. That kind of relationship is so rare in the Orient that the Japanese dared dream of building an empire on their own shabby promises.

The effect of Gen. MacArthur's return in accordance with his promise will not be confined to the Philippines; it will have repercussions throughout the Far East. A great project is afoot. The prayers and best wishes of every one of us here at home follow the Americans who now are bringing the war with Japan to an earlier decision than recently seemed possible.

Fall

The exact date when the trees are bare, marking the last stage in preparation for winter, is indeterminate. One day it seems that most of the leaves are still on the trees; the next day all of them are on the ground.

We are rarely conscious that our American term for autumn—the "fall"—is derived from the fall of the leaves: That part of the year when leaves fall from the trees. It is the time for winter pruning and all the other things that go forward in the fall of the year that is marked by the fall of the leaves that only a few short months ago as time is measured in wartime were springing from bare branches.

If we do not appreciate fall this year as much as it deserves, it is because we expected too much to happen before it came—probably more than ever could happen outside the wishful imagining of human beings separated by oceans from their loved ones.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, October 24

ALTHOUGH, according to the lunar transits, there may be excellent prospects for success, advancement, fulfilled ambitions and financial increase with extended credit, yet the attainment of such high objectives must be secured by adhering to strict business principles and generally accepted modes, procedures and regulations. This because of sudden factors or erratic conditions which may incite to impulsive or emotional decisions rather than sound principles. With care there should be many pleasant and profitable contacts.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of much advancement, financial expansions and business rewards, if they will adhere to the principles and sound practices of progress and accomplishment and not be carried to unwise decisions or actions. There may be some opposition from elders or influential sources, because of certain irregularities. In personal life there should be success, romance and happiness, with fulfilled ambitions in many contacts.

A child born on this day may have much talent and worthy ambitions but is likely to be carried away by its emotions or impulses.

Scoreboard

The Nazis spent a lot of ingenuity, money and effort in building the Siegfried Line. They spent a lot of breath thundering to the world about its "impregnability." But they didn't awe the Yanks worth a darn.

This was evident in a picture the other day which showed a group of G. I.'s listening to a World Series broadcast on a jeep radio, and casually using a wall of the vaunted Siegfried Line for a scoreboard.

We rather imagine that this wonderfully casual calling of the Nazi bluff can be counted among the American soldier's chief assets. He respects the tangibility of bombs and bullets, but he simply refuses to be impressed by bloated propaganda. He will probably shoot craps on the sidewalks in front of the Reichschancellery in Berlin.

An X-ray unit that will take pictures through a piece of steel a foot thick has just been developed. If it had come along just a little earlier it might have been quite a help to the newspaper photographers in giving the public a squint at what was being done at those Dumbarton Oaks conferences.

Let's have an end to all this talk about inflated government payrolls and extravagant bureaucracy. The War Production Board has just dispensed with the services of five dollar-a-year men.

Modern Hearing Aids

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE FIRST hearing aid was the palm of the hand cupped behind the ear. It is still the most universal hearing aid and for good reasons.

The first reason, of course, is obviously that it gathers in a larger number of sound waves and directs them to the ear. This causes the conduction part of the hearing apparatus to vibrate more.

The fundamental fact for the deafened person to understand about hearing aids is that the fundamental trouble with the chronically deafened is that the conduction apparatus is stiff and does not vibrate in a normal way.

The hearing organ is solidly placed in a heavy bone and it responds to vibrations coming to it through the air. But it responds to any vibrations and some vibrations get to it through the bone—normally all the time.

This bone conduction function can be improved with practice and on that depends much of the success of modern hearing aids.

Principle of Hearing Aids

The cupped hand was the first hearing aid, and was the principle of most hearing aids, such as the ear trumpet, until very recently when the enormous improvement of the modern electric hearing aid replaced nearly every other kind. Essentially the electric hearing aid transmits sound waves into electric energy by the transmitter, and then reconverts the electric energy into sound energy by the receiver which is placed over the bone so that bone conduction can be utilized.

Air conduction receivers can be used also for those who do better with air than bone conduction. There is a third part of the apparatus which is the amplifier, which increases or regulates the amount of the type electric energy which will produce sound at the expense of a battery.

But there was a second function that the primitive hand-cupping hearing device accomplished which too many deafened people forget. It was a signal. It told the world—"I can't hear you very well. Speak louder."

I say many deafened people forget that because they are so often ashamed or embarrassed by having to wear a hearing aid. They try to conceal it among the dress folds and all this and that when as a matter of fact one of the greatest helps they could have would be to make it as conspicuous as the old man's cupped hand. Then people would talk at them instead of away from them.

from them and also pitch the voice so it could be heard better.

Most deafened people can hear a high pitched voice better than a low tone. One of the things that surprise parents about children who are found to be partially deaf only when they first enter school is that they never suspected the child was deaf because it would sit and listen intently to the radio. The high pitched radio is the only sort of sound these people can hear.

This psychology of the deaf is one of the hardest handicaps in helping them. There is something about the situation that makes them resentful and shy. A deaf person is always more unhappy than a blind person, as any ear doctor can tell you. People with partial visual defects are proud of all their little gadgets—lorgnons and gold glasses cases, and some Europeans even like to make themselves conspicuous with monocles.

Even with all the troubles of being deaf there occurs to me every now and then one of the three improvements my old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, would make on Nature—that we could shut out ears sometimes as we do our eyes.

It wasn't until I was shaving next morning that I decided what to do. I could have kicked myself for not having been such a damned fool. Who was I to take that holier-than-thou attitude? That statement about remaining good friends was about the dumbest thing I could have said to a woman like Ginger.

Immediately after her departure I'd been pretty sore. I'd shifted all the blame on her. Why did she have to bounce out like that mere because I'd hinted we were beginning to tread on dangerous ground? Was that an insult? Couldn't she have taken it in the spirit that it had been said? And then I'd started pacing back and forth, trying to figure out how I should have handled the situation. I wasn't only annoyed because of my unpleasant taste, the whole thing left in my mouth, but also because I don't like to feel I've made a mistake.

The sight of the remains of our dinner and the empty champagne bottle had irritated me so I'd sent for the waiter. He must have been surprised to find me alone, but didn't show it. He merely inquired if I'd remember what I'd barked at him, but he wheeled the cart out in a hurry. My entire evening had been spoiled. All the joy of moving was gone.

But this morning, with the sun-streaming in through the bathroom window, things began to look different. When a fellow's shaving it's a good time for him to formulate plans. And shaving in this place was an entirely painless procedure.

By the time I was through I knew how I was going to handle Ginger. She'd been so anxious to come over not because she wanted to see the apartment but because she wanted to see me. What better opportunity could there be? Boggio was out of town and here was a perfect excuse for paying me a visit. She'd figured out what she was going to do even before she'd hung up the receiver. I should have known better than to imagine that the champagne had anything to do with her frame of mind.

The more I thought about it, the better I could see how her mind had been working. Here we were, Ginger and I, thrown together by our relationship with Boggio. We both hated him and even though I didn't care to admit it to myself I feared him. But we also knew how to play our cards and make Boggio come across handsomely for whatever he was getting.

Since Ginger's relationship with him was based upon purely financial reasons, she was going to be careful not to jeopardize her standing. I bet one couldn't count the guys who'd made passes at her but she was smart enough to play the role of the faithful little woman. For if Boggio was generous he was also jealous and didn't set a very high price on human life. Ginger no doubt feared that a new boyfriend might eventually have become indiscreet. That is why she had decided reluctantly no doubt—to stick to the straight and narrow path even though Boggio wasn't precisely the type to satisfy her exacting temperament.

And then she'd discovered me. I was the perfect soul mate. I had the same reasons for discretion as she had. And since I'd suddenly come up in the world, this was the appropriate moment. Now, more than ever, I'd wish to remain in Boggio's good graces. It was all so simple that a child could have reasoned it out.

But the strange thing was my own frame of mind. I'd never thought of Ginger as being accessible. But now the situation had changed. She'd practically thrown her self at my head and the reason I'd bungled was because I'd been taken unawares.

I heard the bell at the end of the line ring, and I was beginning to think Ginger wasn't in when she finally answered. Her voice was thick with sleep. "Hello."

"Oh, hello, Ginger. How are you?"

She gurgled something that could be construed any way I pleased. I let it go and continued in my most cheerful manner.

"Hope I didn't wake you up, Ginger. Maybe I'm calling a little early."

"Virgil's not here. He's still out of town."

"I know, Ginger. I don't want to talk to Virgil. I want to talk to you."

"You needn't bother."

"Come now, Ginger. Don't tell me you're still mad."

"I'm not mad. I'm just not interested."

If the telephone line was sensitive to a drop in temperature it would soon be snapping in half a dozen different places.

"Now listen, Ginger. I only wanted to tell you—"

"That's as far as I got. She hung up on me. I waited for a few moments, then asked the operator to get the number again. The phone rang for what seemed to be an eternity and at last the operator cut in."

"There's no answer."

"That's all right," I said. "Keep on ringing."

At the end of the line the receiver was suddenly yanked off the cradle. Still no answer.

This was going to be harder than I thought.

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

by Hal Boyle

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN GERMANY—Only two miles from the front lines, an American armored outfit has set up the first recreation center for Yank troops in Germany.

Here each day 200 soldiers come for a 12-hour respite from battle posts which some have held for more than eight days in rain and cold and through the heaviest shelling and bombing the Nazis have dished out.

The brick buildings housing the recreation center have no windows. Bombs blew them out. They are scarred from shrapnel. But the war is two miles away—and that seems a reasonably safe distance to the men who have been dueling the enemy at a hundred yards.

I walked through the center with the commanding general and Lt. Stephen F. Slaughter of Purcellville, Va., who helped organize this battlefront rest area.

"We bring them in trucks from the front and take them to the center where they can scrub down under a hot shower—the first many of them have had in weeks," the lieutenant said. "Then they get a good hot meal and afterwards they can write letters home or go to one of two movie houses we keep running."

Ease Battlefront Tension
"The whole idea is to get them away from the tension of the front. Those hot showers do the most good. You can see them relax after that. Some of them have been living for days in foxholes under shell and mortar fire so heavy they don't leave their shelters even long enough to go to the toilet.

"As soon as they are clean again and have put down a good hot meal the first thing most of them want to do is grab a pencil and paper and write back home."

A Red Cross director keeps writing supplies and reading material available and Protestant and Catholic chaplains hold daily services. Before dusk the troops load back into trucks and return to their posts.

"The funny thing is that they are itching to get back to their buddies by then," Slaughter declared. "They want to give another bunch a chance to pull out and rest."

"The trip here is something to look forward to," said Pvt. Henry C. Boyette of Columbus, Ga., a combat engineer. "Up there we don't have much to look forward to either. Most of us now don't think this war is going to end tomorrow."

"Oh, I don't know about that," drawled Pvt. Homer E. Thomas of Spruce Pine, N. C., another engineer. "All that is holding us up is the Germans. If it hadn't been for them we would have been in Berlin."

Write Belated Letters
In one room Pvt. Raymond E. Zillich of Waukegan, Ill., a gun loader on a Sherman tank was writing to his wife. They have a 21-month-old son he has never seen.

"This is the first chance I have had to write home in 10 days," he said. "In the front lines the officers have no time to censor mail."

In another room Pfc. Henry S. Porter of Liberty, S. C., a former farmer, watched Pvt. Antony Marino of Hillburn, N. Y., put the final clippers to the hair of Corp. Johnny Davis, Hammond, La.

"I also cut the general's hair—but I don't charge the boys anything for that," said Marino. Across the roof T-5 Jack Cordie of New Brocton, Ala., was putting cement on a shrapnel burn on the foot of Staff Sgt. Gilroy Lemoine of Cottonport, La.

The general, a tall quiet grey-eyed man who has fought in three campaigns, noticed Sgt. Thomas B. Tush of Garrett, Kas., a tank commander, having difficulty finishing a letter and asked:

"Can't you think of anything to say?"

"No sir," replied Tush. "The words come pretty hard up there now. This is sure a pretty nice joint after ducking shells for days. I have spent so much time in cellars I feel like a rat."

Over one door in the recreation center was a German sign "Deutschland über alles — Germany above all."

Some G. I. had chalked under it: "Oh yeah!"

Glamor Blouses

(From Franklin Simon.)

By EPSIE KINARD

NEW YORK—Shirt-tails come out to lie flat and tidy up midrifts, lengthen waistlines, and supply the news interest in glamorous blouses that top short skirts for after-five wear or long black sheaths for dusk-to-dawn goings-on.

Blouse color for these more formal wardrobe needs is poster-bright, and glitter goes almost unconfined in metal-glinted fabrics, in pailletted or jet-beaded motifs that make pattern interest.

With all of this whoop-de-do to catch the eye, blouse designs are simple. The waistcoat look is prevalent—with collar conspicuously absent, and uncut sleeves made either long for cover-up or short for what-ever drama you want to make of them with arm-sealing gloves.

Former WAC Member Is Sorority Speaker

Miss Gladys Seederly, honorably discharged member of the Women's Army Corps, discussed the women's branch of the service, at a tea given by Beta Sigma Phi sorority Sunday afternoon.

Twenty members and guests attended the affair at the home of Mrs. Rex Hundertmark, Jennings ave. The speaker was presented by Mrs. Grein A. Nakagawa.

An orchestra, composed of Miss Marie Callahan, Mrs. Curtis Vaughan, Misses Marguerite Vincent and Dora Laughlin, entertained with musical numbers. The group including flute, piano, clarinet and violin, are members of the chapter.

The table where tea was served was beautifully decorated with a lace cloth and centerpiece of yellow and orchid pompons and yellow roses. Yellow candles in crystal holders lighted the table at which Miss Callahan, sorority president, presided. Mrs. Ray Kenneigh and Miss Mary Leasure were associate hostesses.

The chapter will meet Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Walter Ferrall, N. Howard ave.

Report Men Overseas Like to Read Almanac

(By International News Service) WASHINGTON—Next to the Bible, reports a Marine combat correspondent overseas, the most popular items of reading matter are those contained in almanacs. The correspondents strongly recommend these as belated Christmas gifts for men abroad.

"The reason is simple," he explained. "The most favored form of recreation is arguing about anything and we have learned that for settling such arguments and for deciding winners of bets there's nothing better than an almanac."

"The first day my copy arrived, it was used to settle bets on the capitals of Massachusetts, Tennessee and West Virginia; the relative populations of Texas and New York City; the population of Japan, and the date of the first Louis-Schmeling fight."

AUTO PARTS SALES EXPECTED TO SOAR

TOLEDO.—The immediate postwar period will offer the parts and service business of America's automotive industry the greatest challenge and opportunity in its history, says Royce G. Martin, president of the Electric Auto-Lite Co.

Martin, writing in the Exchange, official publication of the National Exchange Club, believes that motorists will want peace-time performance from their automobiles because new cars won't reach market until at least four years after the war's end.

"Americans will want to see what has happened throughout the nation during the war," he wrote. "They themselves will want to witness the scenic grandeur opened to them by the Alcan highway and by the Inter-American highway."

"People actually will flow—from Alaska to the southern tip of South America—in a family car. The itching feet of servicemen and women will not cling to familiar stamping grounds. They will want to see this great nation for which they fought."

Martin said it is "logical to assume" that present-day establishments will expand their parts sales and repair services to meet the growing demand of the immediate postwar era.

Beauties' Hints

Your Back Needs Makeup, Too, When It Is Exposed

Take a look at your back. Other people will, when you wear blouses with scooped-out necklines and evening gowns with waist-plunging V's. That is why, if you want your back to look glamorous, it needs make-up.

For the kind to apply, listen to Leah Ray, charmer who acts and sings on Morton Downey's network show, who says to make it a liquid tint that can be counted upon to deem.

"Skin that's been exposed all summer is apt to be dry," says Leah, "and make-up with a cream base is both softening and glamorizing."

But key your make-up tint to the predominant tone of your skin—even at reckless or tanned skin—Leah reminds you. Trying to lighten up your back with a cosmetic cover is a mistake.

Car Wheels Out of Line? Matt Klein Can Fix Them

There is only one way to know whether the wheels of your car are in perfect alignment and in balance—even new cars are often out—and that's to have them checked every few thousand miles and immediately if the car has been in even a minor accident.

The checking can be done to the best advantage by the use of equipment designed for this one particular job. The Bear System is recognized as the best. Matt Klein, who operates a specialized body, fender and alignment shop at 813 Newgarden st., reasoned it would be to his advantage to buy the best, even though it did require more capital.

He feels now after several years in business much of his success can be attributed to the choice of his superior equipment.

Another worthwhile thought regarding alignment and wheel-balancing is to have completely trained mechanics do the work and Matt Klein and his assistant qualify as both are graduates of the factory's school.

Proper Lubrication Is Essential to Motoring

A good little, adjusting and oiling will do much to make the old car kick off the first time, assuming you have had the crankcase and other oil and grease points of the car attended to for winter driving. Pete Wiggers knows about all the tricks a car can develop and he will tell you that it will pay you big dividends to have such work done before you try to force the car to go the next cold snap, for then you do so much damage that a real garage bill is certain.

You can arrange to have this work done while you are shopping or at work by stopping at either of the two Wiggers' Super Service Stations on Ellsworth ave.

"Winter-Proofing" Helps Keep Out Chilly Blasts

This winter much fuel can be conserved by direct means, such as cutting off unused rooms, keeping temperatures low, etc. But the big job—winter-proofing—must be done now.

Aside from conserving the nation's scarce fuel supplies, winter-proofing, or heat-sealing, pays big dividends to the householder. Many families who winter-proof their homes can expect to earn during the winter alone a saving of one-third of their heat-sealing investment. Even simple installations can save as much in fuel bills as 20 per cent.

Home owners desiring the benefits of Johns-Manville "blown" rock wool insulation should place their order immediately. With R. B. Finley at the Finley Music Co., 132 S. Broadway.

Lieut. Paul Brown Might Figure He Did Too Good A Selling Job

By HAROLD HARRISON
COLUMBUS, Oct. 23.—Lieut. Paul E. Brown probably is wondering today if he didn't do entirely too good a job "selling" Ohio State to Ohio's fine crop of 1945 High School football players.

At any rate, those Freshmen, perfectly balanced by such brilliant veterans as Les Horvath, Russ Thomas, Bill Willis, Bill Hackett and others, are to play Brown here Saturday at Ohio State's game at the University of Cincinnati, the worst pasting ever administered to a Blue-Jacket World War II team.

And the way the Bucks did it was nothing short of sensational. An outpouring of 73,477 fans watched Ohio explode like a blockbuster for three touchdowns on the final period and in the closing minutes it looked as if the Bucks were going to run the Blue-Jackets right out of the stadium and all the way back to Chicago.

Actually, it looked as if three different games were played. The Bucks had the Blue-Jackets deep in the hole throughout the entire first period to take a 6 to 0 lead. The second period was a little more evenly fought but even then, Ohio State, like the Marines, seemed to have the situation well in hand.

Third Period All Sailors
But it certainly got out of hand in the third period. Jim Youel's passes started clicking and the Blue-Jackets were just as much in control as Ohio State had been in the first period. They tied the score and were back on the Ohio State 19-yard line as the period ended.

Within a few minutes the picture had changed completely again. A 24-yard pass from Horvath to Jack Dugger, described by Coach Carroll Widdoes as the decisive play of the game, ignited a fire for the Bucks that got hotter and hotter as the minutes ticked away. After that pass it took Ohio only four plays to travel 39 yards to a touchdown.

Seconds later Dick Jackson, reserve Buck end, deftly lifted the ball out of Youel's hand when the Blue-Jackets tried the old Statue of Liberty play and sprinted 21 yards to the Great Lakes 19 and set up another touchdown.

Jackson's stunt was a good example of how fast the Bucks were getting into the Great Lakes backfield at that stage of the game. The weary Youel never had a chance on his next series of desperate passes and, after Ohio State took the ball on downs at the Great Lakes 25, the Bucks promptly marched to another touchdown, getting the marker with only one second of the game remaining.

Experimental Changes Due In Quaker Lineup This Week

Some drastic and change-making revamping may be evident this Thursday night at Girard when a twice-beaten Salem Quaker outfit makes its second and last road trip of the 1944 football season—at least that is the impression obtained from practice sessions at Reilly stadium today.

Losers in two of their last three games, the potentially top-notch Quaker outfit has shown a definite decline in offensive power since injuries have riddled the once-powerful backfield.

In spite of some classy jobs by several substitute backs and one last quarter victory against Wellsville, changes are needed, according to Coach Ben Barrett.

Just what these respective necessary changes are going to be by Thursday is a question, but from the way things look now the backs are to be shifted around to strengthen the line and to speed up the ball carrying.

A proposed shift will see Tom Paparadis, ponderous and powerful fullback, working from the all-important center spot offensively and doing that badly-needed line backing job on defense. Paparadis shows plenty of defensive ability every time out and is just a hair too slow for the fullback's job in some new and faster breaking offensive plays scheduled for use this week—if it's dry.

Jay Leach, veteran of more than two years at calling signals, may be shifted over to the empty fullback job and his place taken by Danny Smith. Leach is a deceptive runner, a quick starter and an excellent side-stepper. He may be just the answer to Barrett's speed deficiencies in the fullback assignment.

Smith, a plucky Junior quarterback, may lack the experience needed for the signal-calling job, but the coach feels that his talent is there and only needs development. That development depends on just one thing—experience—and so that is what he will get.

The halfback jobs probably will stay with Bob Boone, Francis Lanney and Ray Kelly. Lanney, though still on the hospital list, did play part of the Struthers game and probably will be ready for more action this week. Kelly has been a regular starter all year and shines well on defense and in blocking assignments. Boone has cut loose some expert running this season and for a Sophomore has plenty of promise, although he is in the "green" classification.

The discovery last week of an effective pair of ends, Senior Dick Baughman and Senior Bill Stoudt, reminds us to do the locals a lot of good for the balance of this year. Along with Veteran Walter Brian who is hindered by an old shoulder injury, they will help the serious and shortage considerably. Barrett says.

Beth Stoudt and Baughman turned in good shows Friday, in spite of playing knee-deep in mud. All in all, Barrett says, the line problems are ironing themselves out and if Paparadis can fill the center spot effectively, the Quaker forward wall should be very well plugged. George "Socco" Vavrek, regular center, has been showing up weak on defense and Barrett is looking for a stronger pivot man.

Though these changes are being executed in practice this week, the Salem mentor says they are not definite—but simply experiments to improve where improvement is needed.

EAST LIVERPOOL DUCATS FOR SALE

Reserved seats for the Salem-East Liverpool football game—the next home game here—will be placed on sale at the usual outlets tomorrow morning. Faculty Manager Fred Cope announced today.

Because of the unusually heavy demand for seats this season and because one of the largest crowds in years is expected for the East Liverpool game on Nov. 3, Cope is planning to reserve 1,800 seats on the Salem side of the field and approximately 1,200 on the other side. Townspeople are urged to get their tickets before game time to avoid the gate rush.

Bucks Prove To Brown His Football Lessons Well Learned

FRESHMEN AND A FEW VETERAN AIDS ARE TOPS

Lieut. Paul Brown Might Figure He Did Too Good A Selling Job

By HAROLD HARRISON
COLUMBUS, Oct. 23.—Lt. Paul E. Brown probably is wondering today if he didn't do entirely too good a job "selling" Ohio State to Ohio's fine crop of 1943 High School football players.

At any rate, those Freshmen, perfectly balanced by such brilliant veterans as Les Horvath, Russ Thomas, Bill Willis, Bill Hackett and others arose to plague Brown here Saturday as Ohio State gave Great Lakes a 26 to 6 beating—the worst pasting ever administered to a Blue-Jacket World War II team.

And the way the Bucks did it was nothing short of sensational. An outpouring of 73,477 fans watched Ohio explode like a blockbuster for three touchdowns on the final period and in the closing minutes it looked as if the Bucks were going to run the Blue-Jackets right out of the stadium and all the way back to Chicago.

Actually, it looked as if three different games were played.

The Bucks had the Bluejackets deep in the hole throughout the entire first period to take a 6 to 0 lead. The second period was a little more evenly fought but even then, Ohio State, like the Marines, seemed to have the situation well in hand.

Third Period All Sailors

But it certainly got out of hand in the third period. Jim Youel's passes started clicking and the Bluejackets were just as much in control as Ohio State had been in the first period. They tied the score and were back on the Ohio State 19-yard line after the period ended.

A 24-yard pass from Horvath to Jack Dugger, described by Coach Carroll Widdoes as the decisive play of the game, ignited a fire for the Bucks that got hotter and hotter as the minutes ticked away. After that pass it took Ohio only four plays to travel 39 yards to a touchdown.

Seconds later Dick Jackson, reserve Buck end, deftly lifted the ball out of Youel's hand when the Bluejackets tried the old Statue of Liberty play and sprinted 21 yards to the Great Lakes 19 and set up another touchdown.

Jackson's stunt was a good example of how fast the Bucks were getting into the Great Lakes backfield at that stage of the game. The weary Youel never had a chance on his next series of desperate passes and, after Ohio State took the ball on downs at the Great Lakes 25, the Bucks promptly marched to another touchdown, getting the marker with only one second of the game remaining.

Experimental Changes Due In Quaker Lineup This Week

Some drastic and change-making revamping may be evident this Thursday night at Girard when a twice-beaten Salem Quaker outfit makes its second and last road trip of the 1944 football season—at least that is the impression obtained from practice sessions at Reilly stadium today.

Losers in two of their last three games, the potentially top-notch Quaker outfit has shown a definite decline in offensive power since injuries have riddled the once-powerful backfield.

In spite of some classy jobs by several substitute backs and one last quarter victory against Wells-ville, changes are needed, according to Coach Ben Barrett.

Just what these respective necessary changes are going to be by Thursday is a question, but from the way things look now the backs are to be shifted around to strengthen the line and to speed up the ball carrying.

A proposed shift will see Tom Paparadis, ponderous and powerful fullback, working from the all-important center spot offensively and doing that badly-needed line backing job on defense. Paparadis shows plenty of defensive ability every time out and is just a hair too slow for the fullback's job in some new and faster breaking offensive plays scheduled for use this week—it's dry.

Jay Leach, veteran of more than two years at calling signals, may be shifted over to the empty fullback job and his place taken by Danny Smith. Leach is a deceptive runner, a quick starter and an excellent side-stopper. He may be just the answer to Barrett's speed deficiencies in the fullback assignment.

Smith, a plucky Junior quarterback, may lack the experience needed for the signal-calling job, but the coach feels that his talent is there and only needs development. That development depends on just one thing—experience—and so that is what he will get.

The halfback jobs probably will stay with Bob Boone, Francis Lannay and Ray Kelly. Lannay, though still on the hospital list, did play part of the Struthers game and probably will be ready for more action this week. Kelly has been a regular starter all year and shines well on defense and in blocking assignments. Boone has cut loose some expert running this season and for a sophomore has plenty of promise, although he is in the "green" classification.

The discovery last week of an effective pair of ends, Senior Dick Baughman and Senior Bill Stoudt, promises to do the locals a lot of good for the balance of this year. Along with Veteran Walter Brian who is hindered by an old shoulder injury, they will help the serious end and shortage considerably, Barrett says.

Beth Stoudt and Baughman turned in good shows Friday, in spite of playing knee-deep in mud. All in all, Barrett says, the line problems are ironing themselves out and if Paparadis can fill the center spot effectively, the Quaker forward wall should be very well plugged. George "Socco" Vavrek, regular center, has been showing up weak on defense and Barrett is looking for a stronger pivot man.

Though these changes are being executed in practice this week, the Salem mentor says they are not definite—but simply experiments to improve where improvement is needed.

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

That much is certain. The fight may also prove to be not only tough but long. However, the length of the war depends on developments and is highly speculative. It should not necessarily follow that we shall have a long war simply because it's a tough one.

Anyway, whether it's long or short there's this satisfaction to be got out of the necessity of dismembering the Japanese empire bit by bit. When we've finished with these savages, who would conquer the whole Orient, they'll be impotent to make war for generations.

While we are talking about taking the Mikado's empire to pieces, it's important to note that, coincident with the American invasion of the Philippines, London announced that part of a British fleet strong enough to deal with the whole Japanese navy was enroute to the Far East. So much for recent speculation as to whether the British intend to see the war against Japan through to a finish. Of course they do. There never was any legitimate doubt of it.

Great preparations are under way in India for all-out war against Japan. In this connection it has been disclosed that there are two and a quarter million Indian troops under arms, ready for action. With the end of the rainy monsoon season operations in Burma and the Bay of Bengal are picking up. Note the British three day assault on the important Nicobar islands which are held by the Japs and must be occupied to pave the way for more extensive operations.

These developments are tremendously heartening for the gallant Chinese, who are hanging on by the skin of their teeth.

Deaths Confirmed

War department confirmation was issued today on the death in action of two district soldiers.

They are:
Staff Sgt. Paul J. Carnes, son of Mrs. Ollie Carnes 120 E. Washington st., Lisbon.
Pvt. Ralph W. Swickard, son of Mrs. John Swickard, R. D. 1, Alliance.

Attorneys' Field Day

LARAMIE, Wyo.—There was not much chance of confusion over legal technicalities in a recent district court case concerning oil royalties here. All the witnesses were attorneys.

FIVE ARE INJURED AS CARS COLLIDE

Five persons were injured at 4:15 p. m. Saturday when two cars collided on Route 14 at the eastern village limits of Columbiana.

Although all passengers in the two automobiles suffered injury, none was seriously afflicted and were released after treatment at Columbiana, state patrolmen said.

The injured were:
Raymond Ackman, 27, of East Palestine, who suffered lacerations of the head and a sprained back.

AND NOW CHET COPE PUTS IN HIS 2 CENTS' WORTH...

The hail storm last summer was news to a lot of people, but tragedy to lots of others who were in its path. It broke windows, made sieves out of roofs, damaged gardens and crops, but after the hail the rain kept falling and roofs leaked, water blew in the broken windows and many pieces of furniture and other valuable articles were damaged. Fire and extended coverage insurance would cover this damage if it occurred to you and only costs a little more than fire insurance. Be sure you have this complete protection.

Germans apparently feared the main blow was building up.

A Berlin broadcast said the First army seemed to have completed its regrouping, brought up "vast" tank reinforcements and could be expected to attack at any moment somewhere along a 16-mile front between Gellenkirchen and Stolberg.

The front from Aachen to the Vosges was a rain-soaked mire, and clouds at three-top height also made an immediate offensive seem unlikely.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army restlessly poked an attack at the Germans toward the upper Saar valley, capturing Bezange La Petite, 19 miles east of Nancy, and fighting in Moncourt, 19 miles from the Saar.

The Germans fought under difficulties, caught in the rear by a bombing which broke an old 800-foot earthen dam two miles south-east of Dieuze and flooded the Seille valley for 10 miles.

More Responsibility For Youth Is Urged

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—Giving American youth more responsibility in family and community projects may be an answer to the current problems of juvenile delinquency and teen-age war jitters, according to Dr. Wm. L. Morgan of Pennsylvania State College.

Dr. Morgan, newly appointed head of the nursery school at Penn State, claims that the average American family expects too little of its children, and as a result cannot ask them to behave like adults. She urges that communities plan more war activities in which youngsters can be of help.

Pointing out that children in foreign countries have been given increased wartime responsibilities and have measured up to them admirably, Dr. Morgan feels that more attention should be paid, both by parents and communities, to the valuable part American youth can play in the national war effort.

Lieutenant's Souvenirs Need An Extra Garage

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Wear became so flooded with souvenirs which their son, First Lieut. Robert E. Wear, sent home from the war theaters of Africa and Italy, that they had to employ the use of a nearby garage to take care of the overflow and still-coming additions to the collection.

For two years Lieut. Wear gathered every campaign button, match book and trinket available. Many of the items sent to his parents have not been identified.

Included in his collection are: Contemporary Italian paintings; German and Italian helmets; French, German, Italian, British and American bayonets and trench knives; German can opener, Egyptian fez, German iron cross, two French watches, Arabian scarves, blankets, silver inlaid chain of beads and lamp wired for electricity, French revolver, German gold braid, several old glass negatives of an Italian family in Africa, cane, flashlights, postcards, countless sea shells and an Italian flag.

Richard Bennett, Stage And Screen Actor, Dead

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Oct. 23.—Death has taken Richard Bennett, a stage idol and screen character famed for a sharp and witty tongue that enabled him to reprimand inattentive audiences and make them like it.

His daughters Constance and Joan Bennett, film actresses, were at his hospital bedside when yesterday at 72 after a long series of heart attacks, Barbara, a third daughter, was reported on her way here from New York.

He insisted that film acting, with its short "takes," required no special talent for sustained drama and that all the best acting was done in the cutting room.

Himself thrice-married, Bennett and his daughters figured in marriages and nine divorces.

Things your car needs this 4th War Winter

Your Engine needs tuning for cold weather driving, for easy starting, to avoid stalling, and to compensate for low octane wartime gas. It needs lighter oil, too.

Your Electrical System Battery should be tested and recharged if necessary for cold weather starting. Also clean and tighten cable connections.

Your Cooling System needs flushing. All hose connections should be checked to prevent leaks. Replace hose if necessary. Add anti-freeze.

Your Braking System Adjust brakes so they function equally—for safety, and to save on tire wear. Re-line if necessary. Check stop light operation.
